Overview

Nathan Diehl joined Paskert Divers Thompson in 2019. He devotes his practice to commercial litigation, focusing on construction, suretyship, and collection matters. He graduated with honors from the College of Engineering and Applied Science at the University of Cincinnati with a degree in Construction Management. Before attending law school, Nathan gained nearly two years of experience working in the construction field for developers, general contractors, and construction management companies. He has helped build office complexes, school campuses, warehouses, and airports, totaling over a billion dollars. Nathan uses his hands-on construction experience to assist his clients on a daily basis.

In his spare time, Nathan enjoys spending time with his wife, Stephanie, watching Bearcat and Gator football, playing golf, and paddleboarding.
